

Escape!: Edition 8.5a

When a threatened architect needs solid help, his strongest ally is a feisty female. The authors original intent for Escape! was a fast-paced romantic thriller suitable for escaping boredom on a coast-to-coast flight. While watching the vast landscape rolling under the wings, journalist Henderson visualized a hot fugitive couple running from cold contract killers, eluding pursuit by the FBI and every other police agency along a 2000-mile journey from Lake Michigan to the Pacific Ocean. Among the plots surprises was one for the author the unexpected emergence of the assertive and spicy Elissa Bennett Pope as the story's brightest star. Elissa was the child of Latin-immigrant parents in Chicagos wealthiest suburb. Groomed from puberty to become a debutante and wife of a Lake Forest millionaire, she landed a beast who assaulted her over his own failures. Her urge for freedom led to a bitter divorce, with barely enough funds to establish Elissa as a real estate broker, property manager, and (for sanity sake) a summer stock theatrical performer. Heat soars when California architect Grey Harper arrives in posh Lake Forest to convert an adjacent army base into a $60 million luxury housing development. Elissas agency locates a suitable cottage for him to rent. While they are meeting in that cottage, a strange intruder sets in motion Elissas most hectic escape ever running with Harper for their lives to a stunning climax at his spectacular cliff-top refuge in colorful Carmel-by-the-Sea, California. Throughout the 2000-mile road race, Elissa is never quite sure whether Harper is actually a brilliant architect (complete with a California tan, water-blue eyes surrounded by crinkles whenever he smiles, a masculine voice and a wry sense of humor) or an eccentric widower with a dark past, who is accused by the FBI of murdering his Chicago client to cover-up a major scandal. Elissas survival is at stake in either case, and she must rely upon her own wits, her hard-earned cash, and her raw courage, every minute of every day and night!
