

Journey to Joona (Joona Trilogy Book 1)

Margaret Morrison knew life wasn't fair. At least not for her. She had always been small for her age and was never good at math, but since moving in with Uncle John after her mother's death, things had gotten even worse. She always seemed to be late for school, her grades were terrible, and now the other kids were picking on her. Then one day, as Margaret is being chased across the old swinging bridge by two spiteful boys, an enormous, beautiful talking swan swims around a bend in the river and changes her life forever. His name is Laurel, he tells her, and he lives in a magic swan paradise called Joona. Now he has come to Earth to get human help in fighting the powerful dark swan, Sebastian, who has blocked the only passageway between Joona and Earth. Many suffering Earth swans are eager to get to paradise in Joona but they can't do it without Margaret's help! Margaret and the two boys, Ryan and Craig, know they must help Laurel, but Sebastian's evil powers are very real and very strong. How can they overcome such terrible dark magic and help the suffering swans find their way to the freedom and happiness of Joona?
