

Your Kids Out of Trouble & Internet Safe: What Every Good Parent Should Know (Volume 1)

This book is written for parents of children from infancy up to the age of 18. The advice will assist you in correcting behavioral problems in difficult to manage children and also guide the rest of us parents in protecting our young people from those who would victimize them. It tells of how to work the system and get your child the help they need. It covers topics such as Social Services and how to use the system to your advantage. It covers Outward Bound programs for children with substance abuse problems and Key Tracking for children who disappear overnight. You receive information on how to use the CHINS (CHild In Need of Services) system to assign people to aid you in your efforts to regain control when the child is defiant. Protect your well behaved children or regain the lost tranquility in your home. This book contains information that every parent needs to know. Robert Stetson is a retired Private Detective in both Massachusetts and Rhode Island.
